

Email Disclaimer and Money Transfer Warning

If you have received an email from Highlander Law, the following disclaimer applies to that email.

The liability of Highlander Law is limited by a scheme approved under Professional Standards Legislation, and the legal practitioners employed by Highlander Law are members of this scheme. For further details about the scheme, please contact us or the Law Society of NSW.

The email you have received (including any attachments) may contain personal information and is intended solely for the named recipient. It is confidential and may be subject to legal or other professional privilege. The confidentiality or privilege is not waived or lost due to the mistaken transmission of this email. If you have received this email in error, please notify the sender by return email, delete it from your system, and destroy any copies.

We do not give any warranties or guarantees regarding the successful transmission, replication, or integrity of any email, nor that it is free from viruses, corruption, or other defects. If you have any concerns about the authenticity of an email, please contact the sender immediately.

Money Transfer Warning:

Scams involving money transfers, fake email accounts, and falsified or tampered invoices are increasingly common. Please note that our bank account details will not change during your matter, and we will never communicate a change of bank details via email. Always verify account details with us in person before making any money transfers as we cannot accept responsibility for funds transferred to an incorrect account.
